BOLD ROBBER - Many party robberies have of late taken place in Hoboken, N Y which have worried the police can iderably but Tuesday morning something happened which caused a panic among the residents, especially those who live in the most wealthy quarter. Eurglass were at work in two places, apparently about the same hour In one instance they were attacked by a savege bloodbound, which, after a desper-ate struggle, succeeded in driving them off In the second case the thieve: were chased by policemen over the roofs of houses. The tenants were in an uproar, and two of the officers were severely injured by falling from the roofs during the exciting man hunt. No arrests were made. Little is known of the battle between bloodhound and burglars, beyond the mute evidence presented yesterday moreing in the yard of Mr. Runton's residence, near Castle Point. Agent for "THE WIARD" CHILLED and The family had been awakened some time after midnight by the graviling of the animal, which was roeming around the place.
They listened, and although the sounds continued for a tane, it was concluded that nothing neutral was the matter, so no investigation was made. When one of Mr. Runton's servents entered the yard some bours later, however, a trail of blood was found and for many of the part of found leading from under a tear window of the house to the fence. At the latter place a portion of the leg of a man's tropsers also found. It was evident that the burg-tar's leg had been selzed by the bloodhound while in the act of realing the fence. The dog was also covered with blood, and he had all the appearance of having gone brough a hard tusele. The men had not succeeded in gaining an entrance to the

A REMARKABLE NARROW ESCAPE .- That Norris Carney, a brakeman on the New England railroad between Hartford and Put. nam, was not instantly killed in falling lato a dizzy chasm from the top of a freight car, near Putnam, the other night, seems to be almost miraculous He was on the top of a twelve-foot-high car, and the car was in the middle of the leng bridge that spans a great rit in the hils at Putnam, through which the Quinnebaug river flows unmittuously. He was holding his brake, when a lurch of the car caused the brake ratchet to slip and he was hurled backward beadlong into the abyes. His presence of mind did not leave olm, and in the instant he felt bims of falling the thought flashed through his mind; "I must turn myself in the air or there is no hope." By a rapid and dextrous movement of the body he succeeded in doing so. He fell about sixty-five feet from the bridge, but in the latter part of the descent went down feet foremost, maintaining that posture by balancing himself with feet and arms. In any event, however, he would have been killed by the fall but for the intervention of a tree with close, thick branch es at the bottom of the chasm on the river's bank. He fell upon the cuter branches of the tree, and clutching desperately at-boughs and foliage, made out to break the great force of his flight. He landed on the boughs and foliage, made out to break the great force of his flight. He lauded on the ground near the tree, bleeding and insensible. Three ribs were broken and his hip was bruised and laterated. Otherwise he was unipjured, and now is getting well.

A BIG BRIDGE.—The big span of the Ohio tiver railroad bridge was placed in position.

river railroad bridge was placed in position at Pittsburg Tuesday, and the bridge is practically completed. This is the first time in the history of science that such a plan has been adopted. The massive structure was towed into the channel on nine barges built for the occasion, and taken to the opening between the piers. The new span of the bridge is the largest of the kind in the world. Its length is 523 feet. From the top cord of the truss work to the deck beams is 67 feet. As it rests upon the stone piers, the span is 80 feet clear above low water mark. The weight of the iron work in the structure is 1800 tons, and about 200 tons of timber have been built into the false work or scaffolding which supported it in the air. The bridge is 4557 feet long, and is the most important part of the Ohio river connecting railroad, which is 12,600 feet tong, and which connects the Pittsturg, Cincinnati and St. Linis, and Pittsburg, Fort Wayne and Chicago stems of the Ponnsylvania lines west of Pittsburg. The importance of the road consists in that it provides an outlet for eastern freight bound for points in the northwest, obviating the necessity for this class of traffic passing through Pittsburg. In the same manner through freight from the West to the East will be carried past Pittsburg without going through the city. The bridge cost over $1,500,000, and the
